Wolves Lottery nets a winner for young patients

Treatment rooms for children and young people with cancer and other conditions have been transformed with Disney, space, blossom and animal themes at Wolverhampton's New Cross Hospital thanks to a charity partnership with the Wolves Lottery.

Your RWTC, The Royal Wolverhampton NHS Trust's charity, was chosen as Wolves Lottery's charity of the year for the 2025/26 season and has been given £10,000 to support hospital projects.

The rooms on A23 in Paediatrics had plain white walls, with just a bed and chair in them. Now, four have been transformed thanks to the artwork of Mr Murals and are kitted out with smart TV's and gaming consoles which include two PlayStations.

Three year old Ardeshir Rahman has regular blood transfusions as he suffers from mixed thalassaemia. He was a big fan of the space-themed room complete with astronaut and galaxy images.

Mum Saima Hasan a GP, and dad Tamzidur Rahman, who works in marketing, loved the makeover too.

Saima added: "When children have to spend many hours having treatment, or preparing for treatment, you're doing your best to try to distract them. The artwork makes such a difference."

Senior Sister Aimee Hashim said: "This has been lovely for our patients – the rooms just feel so bright and more welcoming.

"Children can be here for the majority of the day having treatment so having a better environment is important. Thank you Wolves Lottery players!"

The rooms' themes were chosen by young patients and staff, and the new-look rooms help reduce anxiety for children and their families throughout treatment.

Amanda Winwood, Charity Development Manager, added: "Seeing the transformation of our oncology treatment rooms has been incredibly uplifting.

"This project shows what can be achieved when our community comes together with a shared purpose. The partnership between Wolves Lottery and Your RWTC, along with the talented Mr Murals, has allowed us to create spaces that feel brighter, calmer and far more supportive for our patients.

"This collaboration has made a meaningful and lasting difference for those we care for."

Eileen's hand-knitted gifts bring comfort

We were delighted to meet 93-year-old Eileen and her daughter Tracy, who kindly delivered a beautiful bundle of hand-knitted items to Your RWTC.

While living with dementia, Eileen finds comfort in knitting pieces, with Tracy helping choose colours and assemble the items. Their family has a long, meaningful history with New Cross — children and grandchildren were born here, and Eileen was cared for through two heart surgeries, making this gesture even more special.

Eileen told us she wanted to “do something for new lives” as she enjoys her ninety-third year and we are touched by her kindness. Thank you Eileen and Tracy, your generosity means so much.

Henry Brothers inspire with 'Molly in Construction'

A huge thank you to Henry Brothers construction company for kindly donating books to our Children's Department at The Royal Wolverhampton NHS Trust.

The Molly in Construction book, written by chartered civil engineering quantity surveyor Lisa Molloy, introduces children to life in the industry while promoting diversity, inclusion and positive role modelling.

We're grateful for this thoughtful contribution and look forward to sharing these inspiring stories with the children and families we support.

Flower-filled fun with cancer support group

A huge thank you to all of our wonderful patients and their families who joined the Living With and Beyond Cancer support group. Recently, they held a flower arranging session which turned out to be an afternoon filled with creativity, laughter, conversation and support. Seeing everyone come together and enjoy themselves made the day so special.

We would like to say a heartfelt thank you to Paula's Flowers, Flower Power and The Flower and Plant Warehouse Ltd for their kind donations. Your generosity made this event even more special and allowed us to create a wonderful experience for everyone who attended.

Thank you to everyone who made the afternoon such a success – we can't wait for the next one!

Adventure Days: Building Confidence, Friendships and Lasting Memories

Children and young people living with long-term health conditions have been enjoying new experiences through a series of adventure days organised by The Royal Wolverhampton NHS Trust (RWT).

Living with conditions such as type 1 diabetes, epilepsy and respiratory illnesses can bring daily challenges and, at times, leave young people feeling isolated.

To help address this, Your RWT Charity, the registered charity for RWT, alongside Youth Worker Brian Rhodes, organised a trip to Go Ape in Cannock for ten children and young people receiving care from the Trust.

The day allowed families to come together, take on new challenges and enjoy an exciting day of adventure.

A further trip to Woodlands Adventure in Walsall is planned for later this month, giving even more children and families the opportunity to enjoy a day out together.

Brian Rhodes, Youth Worker for the Children and Young People's Diabetes Team at RWT, said: "It is always a pleasure to organise these events and spend time with our families. We love seeing our children and young people enjoy incredible experiences together.

"Because type 1 diabetes requires constant management and vigilance, these activities provide a wonderful opportunity to build confidence, create lasting memories and develop a strong sense of belonging among others who truly understand what living with the condition is like."

The experiences have been made possible thanks to the generosity of corporate partners and fundraisers, including Child First Residential, based in West Bromwich.

Baldish Kaur Tucker from Child First Residential said: "As a children's home, we wanted to support children living with life-limiting illnesses by helping them enjoy a special day out and create happy memories.

"We believe every child deserves moments of joy, adventure and laughter, regardless of the challenges they face. We hope our contribution brings some happiness to these children and their families and inspires others to support them too."

Amanda Winwood, Charity Development Manager, said: "While the NHS provides essential clinical care and support, experiences like our Adventure Days are only possible because of the generosity of local businesses, organisations and supporters.

"Their kindness helps us provide opportunities that go beyond medical care and make a real difference to the wellbeing of children, young people and their families."
